Diamondhead Utilities ownership discussion expected Wednesday

BY DENA BISNETTE

On Monday, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors is expected to take formal action on a resolution opposing Diamondhead Utilities' proposed rate increase.

The Diamondhead Properties Owners Association, which has already filed opposition to the increase through its president, Elmer Tapper, is expected to discuss a different but related topic at its Dec. 7 meeting.

Daniel Smith, a property owner, has presented the supervisors with a petition signed by more than the required 50 people, asking that a water and sewerage protection district be created for Diamondhead.

He then proposed that one of the available options would be for that district to purchase and operate the utility.

At this point, the matter is still being investigated by Board of Supervisors Attorney Gerald Gex, who said he is not certain the area qualifies for such a district.

The creation of a district, which can charge a special tax for its designated purpose, such as water or fire protection, requires inadequate resources in those areas. Several of the county's fire districts, for example, were started when the areas had only poorly equipped volunteer departments.

Smith has alleged that the utility, currently owned by Purcell, will soon be sold and is not providing adequate service.

Tapper said he had attended the Wednesday board of supervisors meeting where the matter was brought up only to watch the swearing-in of newly-elected Beat Three Supervisor Lisa Coward and had not expected any comment about the utilities matter, and particularly the public ownership idea.

He plans to place the matter on the agenda for the Dec. 7 meeting, although he said he would be personally opposed to the county becoming involved in the ownership and operation of the water and sewerage systems.

Tapper said he agrees with Gex regarding the need for further research and does not know if the board could help anyway.

"Who's to say what's adequate?" Tapper asked, indicating that he feels the question will have to be decided by the State Public Service Commission, the same body that will have to rule on the rate increase.

"I don't know if the people are interested in public ownership at this point and Purcell has not offered it for sale," he said Thursday.

He said he believes the alleged impending sale that Smith mentioned to the supervisors may refer to a recent sale of Diamondhead Utilities stock.

He commented that Purcell has been cooperating with the association by providing records that are being used to prepare for the hearing on the rate increase, which will more than double the cost to the average residential customer.

The Public Service Commission has not yet been scheduled, but Tapper said he and other representatives of the association plan to attend.

BSLLT chooses revival, sets Jan. 18 meeting

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis Little Theatre, revived this past week when concerned supporters met to decide the fate of the Boardman Avenue Playhouse, will conduct a membership meeting Jan. 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the conference room of the new Mississippi Power building.

Individual memberships are $10, said Ed Craig, a past president of BSLLT. Part of the proceeds raised will be used to repair the playhouse, which has a leaky roof and some floor rot on the stage from the dampness.

The playhouse has not been used since last year when the Waveland Players performed a musical, "1776," and a comedy, "Greater Tuna," there before deciding not to purchase the building.

The revival drive, headed by Craig, was reportedly sparked by rumors that the building would be torn down and a small park built on its site.

The Jan. 18 meeting will include election of a steering committee as well as discussion of plans for the future.

Speakers at the "Save the Theatre" meeting, which attracted about 40 people, included Craig; Joe Marochino, another past president; Emily deMontluzin, who gave a presentation on the history of the building; and two frequent BSLLT performers, Ted Stechmann and Sherry Schwabacher.

John Holmes, who has served as technical director for many years, discussed the specific problems with the old wooden building, which according to deMontluzin was built of two surplus military barracks in 1948.

Schwabacher explained that the biggest need BSLLT has right now is people.

Discussion topics that were brought up and may be discussed Jan. 18 included such items as use of the playhouse for other purposes in addition to theatre, how many plays should be presented each year, the organization's current financial and membership status and whether BSLLT and Waveland Players should be amalgamated.

The history of BSLLT goes back to 1946 when 28 people met at the home of Marie Louise Bell and Drewry Bell, deMontluzin said. The group is one of the oldest little theatre organizations on the Gulf Coast.

The first production took place in what is now the Bay Junior High School auditorium, then the McDonald family donated a converted storage building on Carroll Avenue.

After almost three years, the existing building was erected and was outfitted and furnished through donations with most of the labor supplied by members.

The plays featured included dramas, comedies, mysteries and musicals, most of which were recent successes on Broadway and in Hollywood and carried high royalties, but BSLLT was able to obtain discounts from some of the publishing houses and has received awards for some of its productions.

At one time, BSLLT performed plays once each month, but the standard season eventually became about four plays a year with no summer performances, partially due to a lack of air-conditioning and the diversions provided by other activities.

According to deMontluzin, the little theatre's popularity did not begin to slip until 1982. Marochino attributed the problem to several factors, including television, the increasing number of older members, a poor location with inadequate parking and lack of maintenance funds.

However, the consensus of the group that met to "Save the Theatre" was that the audience and the interest in theatre are still evident and that BSLLT can be revived.

Anyone interested in becoming a member of BSLLT may write Post Office Box 342, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520.

Bay council ponders pay hike possibilities

BY D.C. HARVILL

The Bay St. Louis City Council held a workshop Saturday morning to study a proposed pay increase to become effective for the mayor who will take office in July.

The proposal calls for the mayor to be paid an annual salary of $45,000, an average income for mayors of cities with more than 7,000 people, according to a survey presented to the council along with the pay increase proposal earlier in the week.

The mayor currently makes $30,500 per year, the lowest figure of seven cities surveyed that have a mayor-council form of government with full-time mayors.

The next lowest of the seven cities surveyed is Laurel with a mayoral salary of $35,000. The highest is Jackson at $60,000.

Councilman James Thriffley pointed out that the city's police chief, clerk and maintenance supervisor all currently have higher salaries than the mayor.

The fire chief is the only department head to make less than the mayor.

An automobile for the mayor's office is also being considered.

The mayor currently has the option of claiming mileage on his personal vehicle.

"I have reservations about raising someone's salary from $30,500 to $45,000, not with the tax base of Bay St. Louis. It's nothing against Vic (current mayor Victor Frankiewicz). I think he's probably more than worth it, but I can't vote for it and I won't," councilman John Wilkerson said.

City Clerk Edward Favre said, "Instead of a fixed figure across the board for the entire four years, you could set a base rate and tie increases into assessed property value

Election set for Pass Mayor following Erwin resignation

A special election for mayor of Pass Christian has been set for Jan. 10 following the resignation of Jake Erwin.

Erwin, who took office in 1985, has been on an unpaid leave of absence since Oct. 24. He submitted his resignation to the Board of Aldermen Wednesday, citing poor health as his reason.

The qualifying deadline is 10 days before the election and petitions may be picked up at the city clerk's office in city hall.

Erwin did not elaborate on his health problems but did say it took him several weeks to decide whether to resign.

Chemicals, not frost create fall colors

by MARK JAMIESON,
County Forester
Mississippi Forestry Commission

"It looks like somebody took a paintbrush and painted the forest!" That must be one of the most common remarks we are hearing these days as people marvel at the wide spectrum of colors in our hardwood forests.

Despite appearances, nature doesn't paint with brushes. Paint-by-numbers might be the accurate comparison, because each tree has its own fall color bound-up in the chemical composition of the sap, which provides the "instructions" on what color to turn.

Trees change colors according to complex chemical formulas. Depending on how much iron, magnesium, phosphorus or sodium is in the tree, and the acidity of the chemicals in the leaves, trees might turn amber, gold, red, orange or just fade from green to brown.

Blackgum, red maples and sumacs, for instance, have a slightly acidic sap which causes the leaves to turn bright red. The leaves of some varieties of ash, growing in areas where limestone is present, will turn a regal purplish-blue.

color change, the weather actually has nothing to do with it. As the days grow shorter and the nights longer, a chemical clock inside the trees starts up, releasing a hormone which restricts the flow of sap to each leaf.

As autumn progresses, the sap flow slows and chlorophyll, the chemical that gives the leaves their green color in the spring and summer, disappears. The residual sap becomes more concentrated as it dries, creating the colors of fall.

As the leaves die and fall to earth, the forest begins a winter-long slumber. The leaves, which through the warmer months convert carbon dioxide to oxygen, now assume a new role, enriching the soil and providing nutrients for future generations of trees. And by the time this year's leaves fall, next spring's leaves are tightly wrapped in buds ready to unravel in the soft colors of spring.

Just as our hardwoods and pine trees prepare themselves for spring by putting forth buds, so man prepares for future generations by planting forests. Last planting season twelve trees were planted for every man, woman and child in the United States.

We planted 347,000 acres of trees in Mississippi—a historic high. Today, well over 5,000 concerned landowners in our state manage their woodlands as registered Tree Farms. As long as this concern for our forests remains high, we will have ample forest land for our recreation and timber needs, and plenty of opportunities to enjoy the glorious colors of autumn each year.

Side Street Crossings

By Dena Bisnette

Sometimes I wonder why we eat and drink the things we do. You think that I, the original non-domesticated wife, have been playing with cookbooks again? Well, it wasn't a cookbook that made me wonder about this rather serious matter; it was a little cup of tea. I drink all kinds of teas including some wonderful oriental things I learned about when I lived with a Japanese student at USM and some herbal things many of my acquaintances won't touch. I don't think the tea is the problem.

The food we eat may not be the problem either. It's the junk we add to it.

This particular cup of tea was the ordinary brown tea that is mostly iced but makes a good hot drink on a cool day. I microwaved myself a cup and then added one of those little pink packets of artificial sweetener.

I've never before watched what happens when you drop that stuff into something hot. It foamed up like the head on a draft beer and I had this fleeting vision of a mad scientist concocting a Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde potion.

I washed out the cup and made more tea, thinking I might have used a dirty cup or one that still had some soap in it. I added the sweetener and was back in the mad scientist's laboratory again.

I haven't done much scientific research on this, mind you, but I can read the cancer warning on the sweetener package and besides, my instincts tell me not to eat or drink things that foam. Shampoos and soaps foam. Household cleaning chemicals foam. So do bug poisons. Think about it.

Here's something else to think about: soft drinks foam. And did you ever listen to a little kid when he told you about the science class where the teacher dropped a penny into some cola and left it for several weeks? Think about years and years of hitting that drink machine, just because it was there.

I also read labels on foods. Now, if I were really religious about this kind of thing, I would probably have to grow my own food and I would probably have to know the animal providing the fertilizer to make sure he didn't eat some kind of chemicals. As it is, I would never be able to eat canned or boxed foods if I first had to eliminate all those with ingredients I couldn't identify.

I have also learned enough about chemical names to know that anything ending in -ose is probably an added sugar and anything with sodium in it somewhere is an added salt. If it's listed by initials, it's probably a preservative.

I know food is more palatable if it's pretty, but did you ever stop to consider the number of dyes, thickeners and other compounds added to improve the color and textures of food?

I rarely eat red meat any more because the stuff contains all kinds of things designed to make it red and make it stay red longer. That bothers me. It goes against all those instincts so many people have learned to ignore.

That kind of surprises people when they see me cheerfully devour venison given to me by my deer-hunting dad. There's a major difference between that venison and store-bought beef—I know just how the deer was processed and there aren't any chemicals in there.

You don't read much about people dying of cancer and such disorders in the days when food was grown at home and protein came onto the table mostly through hunting and fishing. I like to think people didn't have those problems then, but I'm sure some scientist could probably check it out for me and I'd be right.

Any food is all right in moderation, and that's something else people used to do—they ate in moderation because food was harder to get and eating was looked at as a necessity and not some kind of social ritual where people tried to outdo one another or show appreciation to their hosts by overeating.

Eating must have been considerably more sensible. Today, people pack six starches on the plate with too many carbohydrates and negligible proteins. A lot of the reason, to me, appears to be that starches and foods with lots of additives are not as expensive as what's good for the body, so people on limited budgets are back to the old days in one way—they have to eat what they can get.

It's like when I shop for myself and hit the fresh vegetable counter. They don't have the additives that the canned veggies have, but have you compared the prices? If you're clipping pennies where you can, you'll probably have to go with canned.

Maybe price explains why we eat what we do, or maybe just the availability explains it. Americans in general have grown too concerned with matters of business and time to worry about their food. They read about the very things I'm writing about, but don't have time to read labels on shopping day.

Next time you pick up that soft drink or go to the store to pick up some food, think about what's really in there. Take the time to read the label. Your body might appreciate it.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

This is a time of the year when many property owners acquire large piles of leaves in their yards. Some are used for mulch while others are burned and this can cause some problems.

Recent frosts have caused many grasses to die in addition to leaves and pine straw on the ground and fires which are not properly controlled can get out of hand very fast.

Property owners residing in Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Diamondhead have to make sure they have proper burn permits before burning leaves and there are times these are not issued due to dry conditions.

In our Hancock County woodlands thousands of acres of lands are burned by wild fires. Many of the wild fires start from a fire someone thought they had under control.

There are some serious charges for persons letting a fire become a wild fire as it destroys so much timber and many times burns or at least threatens many homes.

Timber is still big business in Hancock County and many land owners plant new stands of seedlings after harvesting. During the first few years after a planting it doesn't take much of a fire to wipe out a complete stand of young timber.

I have also seen some very large trees destroyed by fire in our area.

If you burn leaves or trash we advise that you have proper permits and make sure you have a controlled fire.

Our county leaders are now facing the same problem many governmental agencies are throughout this country.

The big problem is how to dispose of household garbage as the majority of landfills are filled or do not comply with regulations.

Hancock County's land fill as most of you know is now closed and the supervisors have contracted to have dumpsters placed in specified areas for household garbage disposal only until permits for a new landfill site can be secured.

The three old dumpster sites are still being used and they are located at CC Road in Standard, Pontiac Street in Jourdan River Shores, and Highway 604 in Pearlinton.

The new sites are Highway 603 and 53 behind the ball park, corner of Fire Tower Road and Fenton-Dedeaux Road, 1.6 miles north of Caesar-Necaise Road on the Anna Road, 2.5 miles west of the caution light on the Old Kiln-Picayune Road in Kiln and at the intersection of Washington Road and Chapman Street next to the fire station in the Shoreline Park/Garden Isles area.

Our Hancock County supervisors emphasize that these dumpsters are to be used only for household garbage.

All trash or rubbish, which includes branches, leaves, building materials and other items, must be taken to the rubbish pit at Standard.

It is hoped everyone will use the dumpsters as they are intended to be used and not abuse their use.

Many area property owners are concerned as to exactly what will be the final decision by the Public Trust Tidelands Commission on the state's policy concerning public trust tidelands.

A Blue Ribbon Commission on Public Trust Tidelands was created by Mississippi Secretary of State Dick Mopus to help form a policy and another round of public hearings were conducted along the coast last week.

Many of the residents of Hancock County are concerned about the final policy because so many people own waterfront property in the county.

There were many residents who turned out for the two public hearings held in Hancock County.

We are hoping the Public Trusts Tidelands Commission's decisions will be favorable for all Hancock County residents.

No-tax-increase budget proposed

Governor Ray Mabus proposed a no-tax-increase budget this week that emphasizes education, economic development and the environment.

Other areas receiving significant increases in the $1.9 billion budget are health care, mental health, law enforcement and housing.

The budget contains $34.6 million in budget reductions or cuts.

Gov. Mabus said the proposed budget attempts to get more for taxpayers' money by focusing it where it is needed most.

"There is never enough money to go around, but I believe this budget does a very good job of pumping it into critical areas such as education, economic development and the environment," the governor said.

"Success in these three areas is an absolute must if we are to succeed in raising personal income and the quality of life in Mississippi," Mabus said.

The governor noted that the Legislative Budget Office, which released its proposed budget Monday, also put special emphasis on the areas of education, economic development and natural resources.

"I look forward to working with the Legislature on the budget. As far as I can tell, we're heading in the same direction in terms of priorities," Mabus said.

The governor's budget funds at an annualized rate the $3,800 teacher pay increase approved by the 1988 Legislature. Mabus said he will announce prior to the start of the 1989 legislative session his plans for a second Education Reform Act.

The budget also contains $2 million to the Department of Economic Development for a national advertising campaign.

"I think we can do a better job of promoting Mississippi nationally for tourism and general economic development purposes. Tourism is a huge industry, and we need to make sure that new and expanding businesses consider Mississippi first as a place to grow," Mabus said.

In the area of natural resources, the governor has proposed $2 million for a water management study—helping to fulfill a mandate by the 1985 Legislature.

"Not only is our agricultural health and well being threatened by the availability of water and water use practices, but cities such as Tupelo have faced serious problems in ensuring a dependable public water supply," Mabus said.

"I hope this study will give us the information we need to make sure that a lack of water does not hamper Mississippi's growth and prosperity," he said.

Mabus pointed to two other new programs: A new housing initiative and a state employees' day care pilot project.

The budget calls for $2 million in housing funds to hire a staff to coordinate the state's housing efforts, and to launch some pilot projects.

It also calls for $400,000 in start-up funds for a state employees day care pilot project.

"Working mothers are an indispensable part of the state's workforce. Study after study has shown that the availability of decent, affordable day care actually saves money for employers," Mabus said. "We want to put that concept to work."

In the area of health care, Mabus recommended that Medicaid be increased by $24 million, which will bring in an additional $96 million in matching federal funds to provide health care for the poor in Mississippi.

Only part of the $34.3 million in savings under the governor's state government reorganization plan is contained in the proposed budget.

The governor said he will propose a five-year capital improvements plan in January. That plan, however, will not impose any debt service costs on the next budget year, which begins July 1, 1989.

The President's Column

Free trade the key to our prosperity

Recently Canada held an important election, and I am pleased to again send my congratulations to Prime Minister Mulroney. One of the important issues in the Canadian election was trade. And like our own citizens earlier this month, our neighbors have sent a strong message, rejecting protectionism and reaffirming that more trade, not less, is the wave of the future.

Here in America, as we reflect on the many things we have to be grateful for, we should take a moment to recognize that one of the key factors behind our nation's great prosperity is the open trade policy that allows the American people to freely exchange goods and services with free people around the world.

The freedom to trade is not a new issue for America. In 1776, our Founding Fathers signed the Declaration of Independence, charging the British with a number of offenses, among them, and I quote, "cutting off our trade with all parts of the world."

That same year, a Scottish economist named Adam Smith launched another revolution with a book entitled "The Wealth of Nations," which exposed for all time the folly of protectionism. Over the past 200 years, not only has the argument against tariffs and trade barriers won nearly universal agreement among economists, but it has also proven itself in the real world where we have seen free-trading nations prosper, while protectionist countries fall behind.

America's most recent experiment with protectionism was a disaster for the working men and women of this country. When Congress passed the Smoot-Hawley Tariff in 1930, we were told that it would protect America from foreign competition and save jobs in this country—the same line we hear today. The actual result was the Great Depression, the worst economic catastrophe in our history; one out of four Americans were thrown out of work. Two years later, when I cast my first ballot for President, I voted for Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who opposed protectionism and called for the repeal of that disastrous tariff.

Ever since that time, the American people have stayed true to our heritage by rejecting the siren song of protectionism. In recent years, the trade deficit led some misguided politicians to call for protectionism, warning that otherwise we would lose jobs. But they were wrong again.

In fact, the United States not only did not lose jobs, we created more jobs than all the countries of Western Europe, Canada, and Japan combined. The record is clear that when America's total trade has increased, American jobs have also increased. And when our total trade has declined, so have the number of jobs.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Centrally located animal shelter idea supported

Dear Editor,

Mr. R. R. Fitch's idea (letters to the editor Nov. 27th issue) of a central county location for the Humane Society's new animal shelter that could better serve the Diamondhead, Kiln, and surrounding rural areas is a good one.

Being a resident of Diamondhead, and manager of a town home complex where unwanted cats and kittens are dropped off every week, along with all the abandoned, injured and lost dogs, the situation has really gotten out of hand and is a serious problem.

I'm sure the folks living in the Kiln and surrounding areas would welcome some relief too. As it is now, we get no help (in any form) from the Humane Society or from the Waveland shelter.

The humane efforts to try and solve this terrible animal overpopulation, comes from a few kind individuals namely Mrs. Pike, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Sinders and others, but it is just too much for a few people to do.

I feel the Humane Society needs to direct its attention towards the existing problems by promoting spay and neutering and other services until such time as a new shelter, and where it is located, is more feasible.

My congratulations to the Waveland Animal Shelter which evidently has improved greatly since a year ago.

Sincerely,
Margaret J. Williamson

$40,000 grant to fund USM alcohol project

A grant of more than $40,000 was awarded to the University of Southern Mississippi Drug Prevention Program to fund an alcohol awareness project. Provided by the Governor's Highway Safety Program, the $40,025 grant will allow USM to educate students in the responsible use of alcohol. Student leader Chuck Donlin of Pass Christian plans to form a USM chapter of Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students (BACCHUS).

BACCHUS is an organization devoted to the problem of alcohol abuse prevention among college students, with an emphasis on students and their peer groups, according to Drug Prevention Program Director Dr. Joanne Stevens.

She said organizations such as Mothers Against Drunk Driving and Students Against Drunk Driving also will be included in the project, as well as Hattiesburg merchants who serve alcohol.

To obtain information about BACCHUS or to volunteer assistance, call Stevens or Donlin at 266-4454.

"As a taxpayer, I'd hate to think every time my taxes increased the mayor would get a raise," Wilkerson said.

The council also is considering an increase in the salaries from $300 to $500 for their positions.

"I probably won't be in office to get it, but I think whoever is should get it," Councilman Charles Johnson said.

"I don't think councilmen should make any money on the office, but I don't think they should lose any either. I don't think many people realize everything that's involved in this office. It takes money out of your own pocket," Wilkerson said.

Thriffley suggested they wait to make a decision until new council members are sworn for the At-Large and Ward 1 posts vacated by Wilmer Seymour and Lisa Coward when they were elected to County Supervisor seats.

NASA recognizes Freeman for outstanding contribution

Jim Freeman, a Pan Am World Services employee at NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center in Hancock County, was chosen this month as Manned Flight Awareness Program honoree. Selection of the honor is considered one of the highest and most coveted awards a member of the NASA government and industry team can achieve.

Freeman, Pan Am's mechanical plumbing shop leader, was among five selected by NASA at the Stennis Space Center to receive the honor for his "dedication and commitment to excellence" in support of the manned space program. He joined other NASA and contractor award recipients from across the country at a special event in their honor at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida earlier this month.

Activities at the honoree event included special tours of the Florida center and a reception with NASA Administrator Dr. James C. Fletcher and members of the astronaut corps.

The Manned Flight Awareness Program was developed to give recognition to honorees who have been selected by the various NASA centers and their contractors for their outstanding contributions to the Space Shuttle program and other manned space flight-related assignments.

Rear Adm. Richard Truly, associate administrator for Space Flight, regards the honor as one of the highest and most prestigious awards available to employees of the NASA/industry shuttle/payload team.

Freeman, a native of Birmingham, Ala., has been employed with Pan Am at the Stennis Center for eight and one-half years. He resides in Waveland with his wife Nina who is also a Pan Am employee. They have two sons.

CAPITAL RAPE

A 22-year-old Bay St. Louis man is being held in the Hancock County Jail on a charge of capital rape.

According to Hancock County Sheriff's Department Investigator Nathan Hoda, the victim was an 11-year-old child. The man was arrested at 12:10 p.m. Monday. His name is being withheld to protect the victim, Sheriff Ronald Peterson said.

Bond has been set at $50,000. On a charge of capital rape, under Section 97-3-65 of the Mississippi Code, the maximum penalty is life imprisonment and may include a fine of up to $10,000.

By DENA BISNETTE

ESCAPEE'S PARENTS ARRESTED

The parents of a Pearlinton teenager who recently escaped from the Hancock County Jail have been arrested on charges of harboring and abetting a fugitive, according to Investigator Delbert Seay.

Gus Garcia and Anita Garcia, both of Pearlinton, were arrested by sheriff's officers on December 2.

Gus Garcia formerly had been employed by the sheriff's department as a jailer, but had quit several months ago for other employment, said Seay.

Both Garcias are out of jail on $1,000 bonds.

The Garcia's 17-year-old son, Jason, was being held in the jail charged with rape when he escaped in November. He was later picked up at his mother's sister's house in Covington, Louisiana.

"When he got out we knew someone had taken him to his aunt's house to hide," Seay said.

The case is still under investigation, and more arrests are imminent, according to Seay.

Christmas parade draws crowd of 500

BY DENA BISNETTE
About 500 people turned out Thursday for the annual Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Christmas Parade.

"They were lined up from the beach all the way up the parade route. There were people everywhere, but Santa Claus got to speak to every child out there," Chamber Director Olivia Roland said.

There was also a good turnout as far as participation was concerned, she added.

There were so many law enforcement cars that they were jockeying for the best position, heading up the parade with blue lights and sirens, Roland said.

The parade had a marching color guard from American Legion Post, along with a calvary-style flag bearer, Jackie Odom, appearing courtesy of the 4-H club.

Banner carriers were furnished by the St. Stanislaus Key Club.

Hancock County Board of Supervisors President Ronald Cuevas, Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Frankiewicz Jr. and Waveland Mayor John Longo Jr. were parade grand marshals, but Longo was unable to ride Thursday and Alderman Bob Hubbard substituted for him.

Waveland Civic Association brought a touch of green to the parade with two float-type units and the 1988 St. Patrick's Day Grand Marshal, Uless Duhon.

American Legion Unit Post 139's Little Miss Poppy and the Miss Poppy girls from Post 139 and Post 77 added some patriotism to the Christmas spirit.

Young people were well represented, Roland said, with the Ebony Pearls Dance Team, the Drug-free Drill Team, and Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts participating.

Music was supplied by the K-99 FM Radio Station crew and the Pearl River Community College band with its dance unit, String of Pearls, for added entertainment. In addition, the Bay High and St. Stanislaus marching bands combined for the occasion.

Santa Claus and his elves were supplied with transportation by the Bay St. Louis Fire Department, bringing up the rear of the parade on Fire Engine #1.

Roland said the decorations for the courthouse were supplied by Adams-Lorraine Florist, the courthouse staff, Dorothy Sutton, Joanne and Jay Lagasse, RSVP, Hancock County Extension Home Economist, Darlene Underwood, Martha Van Peske and other volunteers.

Peter, Paul and Mary featured on ETV, PRM

Twenty-five years ago, three young folk singers combined talents and made their debut at Greenwich Village's Bitter End coffeehouse. The rest has been history for Peter, Paul and Mary.

The trio's legacy continues in a new 90-minute holiday special coming to Mississippi ETV and Public Radio in Mississippi (PRM) at 8 p.m., Monday, December 5.

"A Peter, Paul and Mary Holiday Concert," stereo simulcast with PRM, features Peter Yarrow, Noel "Paul" Sookkey and Mary Travers performing some of the season's enduring favorites, including "Silent Night," "O Come All Ye Faithful," "We Wish You a Merry Christmas" as well as their classic folk songs "Blowin' in the Wind," "This Land Is Your Land" and "Puff, the Magic Dragon."

Public Radio in Mississippi, a division of Mississippi ETV, is broadcast locally on FM frequencies: Biloxi, 90.3.

Miss. Power donates $25,000 to Energy Assistance Fund

Mississippi Power Company will donate $25,000 to the American Red Cross to fund the utility's energy assistance program for 1989.

This will be the sixth year in a row Mississippi Power Company has funded the program which provides assistance to qualifying low income, elderly and handicapped customers.

The $150,000 MPC has contributed to the plan has been administered through local Red Cross offices across southeast Mississippi. Since 1984, more than 2,000 MPC customers have been helped by the program.

"The energy assistance program is designed to step in and offer help to people when unusual circumstances prevent them from paying electric bills," MPC Spokesman John L. Hutchinson said. "Elderly and disabled people often can't overcome unexpected expenses. And we want to help."

Individuals must be at least 65 or disabled and be able to show a need for assistance to qualify. Anyone needing information about the energy assistance program should call their local Red Cross chapter office.

BWomen's Center offers hope to domestic violence victims

BY D.C. HARVILL

In some cultures, including our own, women often have been treated as little more than chattel—beasts of burden, slaves, items of property—to be "disciplined" at a husband's whim.

Groups opposing cruelty to animals, and laws designed to prosecute those perpetrating the cruelty, have existed for some time, but battered and abused women have had little support—until recently.

There is at least one group on the Coast that is dedicated to assisting women who find themselves victims of domestic violence or sexual assault, and to educating the public about their plight—the Gulf Coast Women's Center.

According to literature distributed by the center, about two million women per year, from all cultural and economic backgrounds, are abused by their husbands.

The center, serving the six counties in the coastal area, along with 11 other shelters throughout the state, comprise the Mississippi Coalition Against Domestic Violence.

Since it began serving the Coast in 1977, the center has helped thousands of abused women and their families through its crisis line, counseling, education of justice agencies on how to handle domestic cases and by providing temporary shelter.

Last year 215 women and 360 children were sheltered and more than 1,500 crisis calls were received on the Coast, according to center director Jane Philo.

"We never turn anyone away," says Barbara Celles Cropp, outreach coordinator for the center, a fact that is borne out by the 15 women and 28 children currently finding safe harbor at the shelter.

The direct victims of domestic violence aren't the only ones to feel its consequences. Children of households where such abuse takes place often suffer from low self-esteem and, themselves, tend to become abusive, according to Cropp.

"The ills of society are perpetuated through the ills of the home," she says.

"Abuse usually proceeds in a cycle of tension, verbal abuse then battery, followed by a honeymoon period in which they make up," Cropp says.

One aspect of domestic violence that many people find hard to understand is why its victims often remain in the situation.

According to a center brochure, women remain in such situations for a number of reasons. Among them are financial dependency, the fear he will harm their children and, being battered psychologically as well as physically, she often begins to believe the beatings are deserved.

By remaining in the situation, the cycle of abuse is allowed to continue.

The only way for the cycle to be broken is for the woman to remove herself and their children from the household. It is also important that the abuser undergo counseling, according to Cropp.

In May, Mississippi became the 38th state to take an important step toward helping break the cycle, when it passed a law allowing officers to make an arrest at the scene of domestic violence, without a warrant, if they find probable cause.

Cropp thinks the law will serve as a deterrent when would-be abusers find they can be held legally accountable for their violence.

Before the law, domestic violence was considered a private affair, not a law enforcement matter. The only way an abuser could be prosecuted was if the woman filed charges, an option they seldom pursued.

"If you assault anyone else it is a crime, and it is the same for a family member. The new law says they are responsible for their crime and takes the burden out of the hands of the woman," Cropp says.

Anyone requiring the services of the Gulf Coast Women's Center should call (collect) 435-1968 for information and help, 24 hours a day.

"The ills of society are perpetuated through the ills of the home."

Hancock quick to use
domestic violence law

BY D.C. HARVILL

When Mississippi passed into effect Senate Bill 2258 in May, giving law officers at the scene of domestic violence the right to arrest the offender if they find probable cause, the Hancock County Sheriff's Department began using the statute almost immediately.

In November, when the Mississippi Coalition Against Domestic Violence sponsored a seminar in Jackson for professionals who deal with domestic violence, Sheriff Ronnie Peterson was called upon to speak on the implementation of the law by his agency.

"We have used the law numerous times already. We got a head start on the law. We just took it upon ourselves to use it," Peterson says.

A further push to implement the law came about the time the law was instated, when a domestic quarrel in Shoreline Park ended in a murder-suicide, the sheriff says.

"I think it is one of the best laws we've ever had; we're probably going to save somebody's life with it. Who knows we already may have saved somebody's life," the sheriff continues.

People think they cannot be arrested for domestic violence because, before the law, the victim had to file charges against the abuser. But with the new law that burden is taken out of the hands of the victim.

All Hancock County officers carry copies of the law and explain it to those parties involved in domestic infractions who think they cannot be arrested without a warrant.

"A lot of our problems come from domestic violence especially on weekends, because more people are off work and are drinking. We think this law will serve as a deterrent," Peterson explains.

Literacy training workshop slated

A workshop for training volunteer tutors in Laubach Literacy methods will be presented by Helene S. Roth, coordinator of Hancock County Adult Literacy Education (ALITE).

Those interested in the problem of illiteracy and those wishing to update their teaching skills are also invited to attend. Tutors from other literacy programs who wish certification are welcome.

The workshop will be held in two six-hour sessions at the City-County Library on Hwy.

90, Bay St. Louis on Saturday, Dec. 10 and Saturday, Dec. 17 from 8:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. Attendance at both sessions is required for certification. Session two may be made at a later date if necessary.

A fee of $10 covers the cost of teacher's manual and training handbook. Pre-registration by calling the library at 467-5282.

COOKING UP
A STORMBy Katy McGuire
Caire

With holiday parties already in the offing, hosts and hostesses are in search of special tidbits for the party table.

Among my favorites are stuffed artichokes and artichoke balls, and various dips and spreads, and so on, but just now I'm busy stirring up one of the very best and easiest appetizers ever—spinach balls.

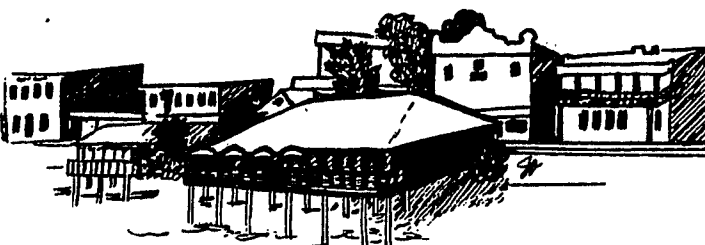

Mix all ingredients together until well blended and cheese starts to melt, then form into small balls and roll in seasoned bread crumbs (the herb-cheesy kind).

Spread the balls on a greased cookie sheet and bake in a 425 degree oven for 10 minutes.

Serve on picks for a treat! (Approximately 5 dozen balls). If you wish, make up the balls a day ahead of time, and refrigerate, covered, than bake as needed, but allow five or so minutes more for the cold rice balls. Enjoy—they're so easy to make. (Copyright, 1988, Katharine D. M. Caire)

CONSUMER UPDATE

Christmas shopping and children

The Christmas season provides the perfect opportunity to teach your children some valuable money management practices. Even five- and six-year old children can understand what money means. They can also learn to select items that bring satisfaction.

To get your child started on becoming a good consumer, try the following tips:

Be ready when your child asks, "What can I buy for Mommy or Daddy?" Be ready with a few gift ideas. Suggest gifts that are simple and familiar. Keep the price low.

Write down the gift ideas when you are ready to take your child shopping. If you want this to be a learning experience, plan your shopping trip carefully. Refrain from buying unplanned items. Allowing a child to impulse buy teaches bad spending habits.

Go when you are not hurried and can spend some time on the child's gift list.

Shop when stores are not crowded.

Plan your shopping in the morning when your child isn't tired.

Keep the shopping time short. Do not shop for many gifts in one trip.

Let your child carry the gift money in his or her pocket.

When you arrive at the store, look for the gift ideas you talked about at home. Help your child find items that are in his or her price range. You may have to say, "No, you can't buy that one because it costs $3, and you only have $2 in your pocket." It is good for children to learn that they can't buy what they can't afford.

What if there are several good choices? Let your child choose.

Let your child give the money to the salesperson and receive the change. This teaches the direct relationship between money and goods.

What if your child later has second thoughts about the gift? That is an important lesson, too. Not being happy about a purchase teaches children that careful buying and planning is important.

Try to avoid running down your child's gift choice. Instead, find something good about the gift and praise selections made wisely.

Use this positive learning experience as a basis for teaching good buying habits throughout the year. By continuing to guide them in the wise use of money, you will enable your children to become adults skilled in proper money management.

Three things to change

By Fr. Jerome LeDoux, SVD

No matter where you are, no matter what you do, no matter with whom you interact, there are but three things which you are able to change: the situation, the other person, or yourself.

Of these three, the only one over which you have any consistent or effective control is yourself. From without, you are at the mercy of circumstances and the behavior of others. From within, you can command your attitudes, words and actions.

If you are married, you belong to the smallest, tightest, most intimate and most powerful community in human society. You cannot change those conditions; in fact, you should not want to change any of them, since they are most conducive to human happiness.

For the most part, living in a goldfish bowl and under the microscope of marriage is a dynamic which is unavoidable and very trying, but calculated to bring out the best in a woman and man committed to become one in spirit, in feeling and in purpose.

Should your spouse turn out to be less than desirable in one way or another, there is relatively little you can do to change him/her. Mostly, you can concentrate on more intense communication, on more attentive listening and greater sensitivity.

What you do control and what you can change extensively is yourself. Even where practically none of the fault is yours, you still have much space to adjust, to show deeper maturity, and to meet your spouse far beyond the 50 percent mark.

Likewise, your job conditions may be abominable. Even after struggling to improve them through a union or through other negotiations, the situation may go virtually unchanged. You may feel caught in a vise which you are unable to loosen at all.

Under the best of job conditions, your boss or your co-workers may be the real pain. Again, to hear workers tell it, there is precious little that can be done to change the sour, repulsive or negative attitudes of bosses and fellow laborers.

Your workplace may be a veritable hell to which you are condemned to spend a third of most of the days of your life earning your daily bread. Peeking forward to the rest of your life, it is difficult to imagine a sentence more bleak than this.

Nevertheless, not all is lost if you change the one thing over which you have command: yourself. You will make the best of the worst if you steel yourself and grow in maturity each day.

Of all places and situations in which you must function, it is quite likely that the one you will be least able to change is the Church. This is a terrible irony, for, if there is any group which should be ready for useful change, it is the Church.

Yet, it is the Church which is usually the bulwark of traditions, both good and bad, and the last bastion against change. Again, it is frustrating and mainly futile to attempt to change the attitudes and worship methods of other church members.

However, it remains fortunately true that you can change yourself in whatever way you may need change. Ultimately, since all of us are the Church and comprise the Church, changing yourself can eventually add up to changing the Church, if others follow suit.

Jesus challenges you to painful but remarkable changes which you can allow to take place within your innermost being.

"Unless the grain of wheat falls into the ground and dies, it remains alone. But, if it dies, it brings forth much fruit." (John 12:24)

Changing yourself will often feel like a dying, but, by changing yourself, you can best influence circumstances and other people.

GRANDMOTHER TO BAY

A Bay St. Louis man who was arrested on a charge of sale of a controlled substance by Bay Police recently was released for his grandmother's birthday. William Leondias Carter, 40, was arrested after the Bay St. Louis Police Department reported he had returned to town after being in the state penitentiary. Charges against Carter include possession of a controlled substance. Officer David Murtagh on duty at the time of the arrest said he was apprehending Carter.
